

Advertising Policy

The African Journal of Reproductive Health (AJRH) may accept appropriate advertisements that are relevant to its readership and consistent with the journal's mission and ethical standards.

All advertisements must be clearly identifiable as advertising and must remain separate from editorial and peer-reviewed content. Acceptance of advertisements does not influence editorial decisions, peer-review, manuscript acceptance, or publication.

The Editor-in-Chief has final authority over the acceptance, placement and removal of advertisements. AJRH reserves the right to reject or remove advertisements that are misleading, inappropriate, unethical, or inconsistent with applicable laws and regulations.

Advertisers have no influence over the journal's editorial content or editorial decisions.